Hi I'd like to purchase the car outright if that's still possible to do. This is the vehicle that the full self-driving system flung into a curb on April 26, and then which Tesla's Burbank Service Center lied repeatedly about the status of an ongoing warranty claim while letting the lot fees accrue at a non-affiliated collision center that I'd never approved them to deliver the car to. I did open a warranty claim that was never resolved, then another and made an NHTSA report. The malfunction occurred during the trial period event when Tesla wide released its FSD System, using its customers as human test dummies to collect much needed real-world road performance data. Am hoping that Tesla's malfeasance won't result in the total loss of my vehicle, as i'm now in a better financial situation and can pay the car off entirely- less the damage costs.

Best,
